

Specifically, Never Yielding Europe's Territory (NYET) Act would:

- Impose real costs on Russia pre- and post- invasion by:
 - Sanctioning Putin's cronies, enablers, and major banks BEFORE Russia further invades Ukraine to ensure Putin pays a price now for hybrid attacks already launched against Ukraine.
 - Sending a clear deterrent message to Putin that an invasion of Ukraine will result in massive economic consequences to Russia's economy, including:
 - Sanctions on major Russian banks; and
 - Secondary sanctions on banks that continue business with sanctioned Russian banks.
 - Allowing any chairman or ranking member of a national security committee to force a determination from the president on whether Russia's aggression against Ukraine constitutes a major escalation and fulfills conditions to trigger sanctions.
 - Immediately stopping construction of the Nord Stream 2 project and mandating sanctions on the project without a waiver should Russia invade.
 - Before a potential further invasion of Ukraine, immediately imposing sanctions on the Nord Stream 2 if Germany re-starts the certification process.
 - Denying exports of semiconductor technology to the Russian Federation, applying a foreign direct product rule to capture items made outside the United States and sanctioning any company that violates the United States' export control policy on the Russian Federation.
- Provide support for Ukraine before, during, and after a Russian escalation by:
 - Providing $500 million in Foreign Military Financing (FMF) for Ukraine, including $250 million in emergency funding, with $100 million for emergency lethal assistance for critical capabilities like air defense, anti-armor, and anti-ship capabilities.
 - Creating a new Ukraine Resistance Fund to help Ukraine resist attempts to occupy or subjugate any new territory Russia seizes, while sending a clear message to Putin that his military will pay a price for advances into sovereign Ukrainian territory.
 - Expediting congressional review of arms sales and security assistance to Ukraine.
 - Designating Ukraine as a "NATO Plus" country to ensure the expeditious consideration of the sale of a range of U.S. defense articles and services.
- Reassure NATO's Eastern Flank by:
 - Doubling funding for U.S. military exercises in Europe.
 - Creating a new State Department FMF program for Eastern Europe to help European allies strengthen their own defensive capabilities and incentivize greater burden-sharing.

- Boosting funding for State Department efforts to counter Russian disinformation, including the Global Engagement Center, and expanding broadcasting by Radio Free Europe/Radio Liberty.
- Establish stronger Congressional oversight over the Biden Administration's use of Russia sanctions by:
 - Providing Congress a veto over the removal of a wider range of Russia-related sanctions, including the Biden Administration's April Executive Order 14024 (Blocking Property With Respect To Specified Harmful Foreign Activities Of The Government Of The Russian Federation).
 - Establishing a mechanism to require the Administration to review certain persons submitted by Congress for eligibility for Russia-related sanctions.
- Reject Russia's proposal for a deployment moratorium of intermediate-range ground-launched missiles in Europe and require a strategy on cooperation with NATO allies on conventional intermediate-range missiles.
